Skeptic Fears Health Scheme To Be Delayed

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, May 27.—An impression that national health insurance might not be enacted for another decade was reported yesterday by a westerner who came to Ottawa to place information before the social security committee. The skeptic was E. R. Powell, Regina, secretary of state hospital and medical league, an organization of laymen, who submitted a brief to Health Minister Mackenzie, and Cyrus MacMillan, M.P., chairman of the social security committee.

The committee has concluded its public hearings, but the Powell submission will form part of its records. It was supported by J. H. Cumming, secretary of Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation. Mr. Powell's proposal, was that the municipal district hospital plan developed in the west should be extended to the municipalities and that it be coupled with a system of well-equipped clinics for diagnosis and specialist services. Municipal schemes would be federated into a provincial scheme.

DESCRIBES SUCCESSES

Mr. Powell described the success of the Kaiser hospital created in connection with the Kaiser shipbuilding industry in the United States. At Richmond, Calif., for instance, 36 full-time doctors and five part-time doctors provided the best medical service money could buy at a cost of $12 to $13 per capita, for 30,000 shipyard workers. This compares with the estimate of $12.60 in the Canadian plan now under consideration.

Petitions circulated by the state hospital and medical league in the west have obtained about 30,000 signatures already. Many organizations have affiliated with the league, said Mr. Powell. He is an employee of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool at Regina, administering trusts and estates.

Jottings From Parliament

OTTAWA, May 27.—(CP)—Almost anything from needles to haystacks can turn up in returns tabled in the Commons for questioning members of parliament. Yesterday Trade Minister MacKinnon said in a reply for A. M. Nicholson (C.P.C.—McKenzie) that Canada imported 1,454,149 gallons of grapefruit juice last year.

"The government was considering plans for 'considerable extension' of research work in the field of synthetic oil," said Resources Minister Cresser. Mr. Cresser said Germany unquestionably was using fuel obtained from coal. Canada had huge supplies of coal and research in this field seemed warranted. J. R. MacNeil (P.C.—Toronto)

Schoolboys' Band Scores Success In Performance

Stirring marches, solos, duets, dances and other numbers comprised the program given by the Edmonton Schoolboys' Band at Westlawn high school auditorium Friday night. A repeat performance will be given tonight.

Under the baton of T. V. Newlove, the boys, with junior and senior bands, played a program of 100 instrumentalists, performed a variety of varied and difficult program in a manner that reflected careful training, diligent rehearsal and genuine interest in the subject at hand.

While the ranks of the band have been steadily growing since last year, the band has been playing for over 20 years.

Canuck Troops Pinned to Ground For 20 Hours by Fierce Hun Fire

ALONG THE MELPA RIVER IN ITALY, May 27.—(CP)—Major E. C. Rawlings of Montreal told yesterday how a Canadian unit, pinning the Germans' vaunted Hitler line, remained pinned to the ground in a wheat field under German fire, unable to lift their hands for 20 hours.

He said four companies attacked recklessly in the middle of their sector of the Hitler line defenses. As they attacked, the Germans held their fire until the Canadians were less than 100 yards away.

The Canadians advanced steadily across four acres of wheat and the Germans opened up over open sights. Casualties were heavy, said Rawlings.

The remaining members of the attacking unit were stuck in a wheat field, not daring to raise their hands for 20 hours, when the Germans were forced to retire.

Some of the numbers played were arranged by Mr. Newlove. A large audience was on hand to see the band. The band has been playing for over 20 years.

The German Tenth and Fourteenth armies have probably lost 100,000 men, it was estimated, and prisoners. The number—except for the divisions in the Allied zone—has been reduced to the point where the Germans are no longer able to defend their positions.

Nearly 100 cadets took part in the parade. Officers of No. 152 (C.I.B.C.) at Westkennedy were hosts at a dinner and dance Thursday evening at the Hotel St. James. H. Strindberg, retiring officer commander, who left the center Friday to return to his post at the University of Alberta.

Pack dogs are being driven by parachute to the latest means of rescuing forces forced down in the northwestern zone. It is old stuff to parachute supplies to airmen in distress, but an innovation when a pair of pack dogs come tumbling out of the sky to lug these supplies on what is often a long, exhausting trek back toward base.

Edmonton's American consul here since last July, will leave shortly to join the staff of the American ambassador at Ottawa, it was announced on Monday.

3 Per Cent City Money

Calgary also has done some successful refunding, on a relative scale. A new bond issue of $1,635,000 was sold to obtain funds to retire a corresponding amount of maturing debentures. The interest rate for the first six years will be 3 per cent, and for the next eleven years 3 1/2 per cent. The bonds sold at a premium which netted the city more than $10,000. The maturing bonds are being refunded at 3 per cent; and for the next six years the saving in interest will thus be slightly more than one-third.

The city has the further advantage that interest on the new bonds will be payable in Canadian funds. On Edmonton's new refunding issue the interest must be paid in United States funds, for the reason that the bonds being retired are held in that country. Calgary's maturing bonds were held in Canada. At present the exchange rate against Canadian money in New York is $11 on the hundred.

The Mosquito Again

From a conference of medical men in Toronto comes word that there are twelve types of mosquitoes; which seems to suggest that nature is unaccountably particular in supplying various kinds with numbers of the pest. One of these breeds of the germ-carrying class, the conference was told, is found in Canada, and the fact that it is particularly liable to distribute are those which cause malarial fever.

That brings the theme of the conference to the last of the practical interest to people in Edmonton. Perhaps some of these malarial-carriers are hatching out in this area. If the city authorities have not already made up their mind to busy and sprinkle that supply of anti-mosquito oil on the sloughs in and around the city, and should also make good use of any further supplies they can obtain.

By way of emphasizing the need of preventive action the conference was told that malarial germs may be brought back from the tropics by service men returning from that zone, and thus put within reach of the carrier mosquitoes. Also that unless precautions are taken to prevent the spread might sweep the country as the 'flu did toward the end of the first great war.

Without getting too technical, authorities all over Canada seem to make it a point of warning and take protective measures in connection with the terrible results such an epidemic could cause. It is not to be expected that the 'flu will happen in Edmonton, but it is not good enough. Nobody supposed the 'flu would reach Canada when the outbreak was reported in Spain. But it did.

Fitness Or Fetish?

A great deal has been said and written about the current national physical fitness campaign which is supposed to culminate, eventually, in a National Physical Fitness Act. Just how much importance is going on in Ottawa among representatives from all nine provinces who are endeavoring to formulate a program of sports and athletics which will enhance the national health of Canada.

There is much in favor of this movement. The percentage of physical disability revealed in the last census, and the commitment in the armed forces has been rather appalling. Canada is not a fit nation. And experience has shown that directed physical exercise does improve the general standard. British Columbia's experiment along this line has been notably successful.

But there are dangers in the movement too. There is the very real danger of physical excellence becoming a blind fetish in which every other form of improvement is subordinated to a powerful body. Something of the sort happened in Germany before this war, where young men and women were made perfect physical specimens but permitted to grow up in gross ignorance. There must be remembered, too, those universities which emphasize athletics to the exclusion of other forms of education.

Sometimes athletic zeal is physically harmful. Many a delicate body has been ruined by the boisterous enthusiasm of sport fans. In the case of the young men, who are adequately considered and duly guarded against, the movement has tremendous merit. There is every reason why this should be a robust movement. There is no real reason why it should not be.

The Big Forgotten Factor

A survey has been made in Regina, with the idea of finding out how much money the people of that city plan to spend in post-war days on household goods, repairing old ones, buying new furniture, automobiles and household equipment. The total runs up to the impressive sum of $10,000,000.

This figure may prove to be below the mark or above it; only time can decide that question. But the point of importance is that Regina now has a more or less definite understanding of how much its people are likely to contribute to keep the wheels of industry turning when the war plants have closed down. It is obvious that they will look forward to post-war times with more confidence because of this knowledge.

If such surveys could be made in communities all across Canada, the aggregate spending that is planned by private citizens would reach surprising proportions. If these are busy times in respect to war needs, they are equally busy in respect to a wide range of normal peace-time consumer needs. The things that people are doing without, of necessity and of choice, are building up a back-log of demand of indefinite huge dimensions, which it will take years to satisfy.

Attention has been directed too exclusively to what the Dominion government and what the provinces must do, and what the municipalities must do, to prevent the country slumping into depression when the demand for war supplies tapers off. Not enough attention has been paid to the fact that in peacetime it is not the spendings of governments which make jobs, but the spending of individuals. And never in history have Canadians stored up anything like the buying power they now have with which to carry out their delayed building and buying plans.

That is something worth thinking about when politicians and professional shudders bring the platform blues about terrible times ahead.

Nazi officials and officers in France are reported to be shipping their women and baggage back to Germany. This does not imply that they are getting ready to return. It does imply that they are ready to leave France to become a battlefield and by no means sure they can hold the country. It discloses also a healthy suspicion that the few military operations which have been going on between France and Germany cannot be counted on to be still running trains a few days or weeks hence.

Marshal Kesselring is said to have had 25 divisions in Italy, 15 of them in the fighting zone, the others being trying to keep the Italians from breaking his communication lines and otherwise playing havoc with his supports. One of the supplies being cut off is the food supply, and another is represented by killed, wounded and missing. Anything in the way of a successful "pincher" operation is, in fact, impossible. The Russians staged on the eastern front, would threaten collapse of the whole enemy set-up in the northern half of the peninsula.

Editor, Bulletin: Would you kindly give a space in your paper with respect to the citizens of the community believing that for the protection of the city, and other birds who invade our community each year from the south.

The Humane Society and a great number of the citizens have asked that something be done to protect these birds from their enemy which is known as the cat.

If the owners of cats were to put a bell attached to a white string around the cat's neck, it would serve as a warning to the birds of their presence.

Each year at this time a great number of these birds are killed off simply because they are not given any chance of escape against their enemies.

I would also suggest that parents of small boys warn them against the destruction of the bird nests, as Humane Officers have had a great deal of complaints each year with respect to the destruction of the bird nests.

It is my hope that the humane society will be of great assistance in this matter.

Howe Tells House:

Major Oil Development In Northwestern Canada Is Object of Exploration

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

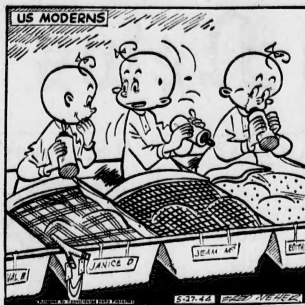

OTTAWA, May 27.—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said last night in the Commons that the main object in the exploration of oil resources in northwestern Canada was to find a major oil development that would make the Dominion independent in her oil position in the world.

Speaking during debate on the Canol project, Mr. Howe said "it is of great national importance that Canada should have an important source of petroleum within her own boundaries."

If Canada had a good supply of oil in the north west she could trade that oil for United States oil that could be used to serve eastern markets. This would put Canada "in a vastly stronger position with respect to petroleum than we are today."

Mr. Howe said that "if the world knew that Canada had large deposits of petroleum within her

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"This is my first bottle, no pardon my nervousness."

He said other operators would go into the northwest on the same terms as Imperial Oil. Resources Minister Crerar said the government had "not given away" any of the country's resources in the agreement entered into with the United States for the development of the Canol project.

"We have provided for the development of these oil resources on terms which we think are fair and equitable and which protect the public interest," Mr. Crerar said during continued examination of his department's war appropriation estimates.

He spoke after G. H. Castleden (C.P.—Yorkton) said the right to develop the oil project had been "handed over" to the Imperial Oil Company which was owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Before study of the estimates was resumed, Labor Minister Mitchell said no change was contemplated at the moment in the system of calling up men for compulsory military service.

GOVT. ACTION WANTED
Mr. Crerar said he understood Mr. Castleden argued that the development of the oil resources in the area should have been undertaken by the government.

Mr. Castleden said even after the war it appeared Imperial Oil rights continued and the Dominion did not receive enough in return. The minister said Mr. Castleden appeared to protest any arrangement being made with Imperial Oil.

"I said you made a bad bargain," said Mr. Castleden, "under the circumstances of the war, you may have had to use the company, but post-war rights for development have been handed over to Imperial Oil."

Mr. Crerar said all the areas in the Yukon and Northwest Territories were not handed over to Imperial Oil, even for exploration. There was a "considerable chance" the oil company would "lose out" in the northern under-takings.

GENERAL PRACTICE

The general practice in other countries was to get revenue from royalties in oil developments, said Mr. Crerar. This practice was being followed by the Dominion in the Northwest Territories. The government had the right to one-third of the oil found. Ground rentals also were charged. There were limits on the acreage any company might be granted permission to explore.

The United States had some claim on the supplies after it had developed them for its own defence and the defence of Canada, said Mr. Crerar, speaking of arrangements for supplying oil, to a certain amount, in the United States.

Y. H. Sissons (L.—Peace River) said Imperial Oil had not been given any undue advantage under the agreement. Every encouragement should be given everyone seeking to play a part in development of the Mackenzie river valley. Any profit a company might keep would be small compared to the benefit to Canada.

TOO LITTLE DONE

Mr. Sissons said he did not think too much was being done for Imperial Oil, but that too little was being done to encourage northern developments.

Mr. Crerar said a 12-inch pipeline to Whitehorse in the Yukon would be needed to supply commercial needs and this would cost about $80,000,000. Before such an outlay was warranted $300,000,000 barrels of oil should be in sight.

The minister said a clause in an order-in-council gave the government the right to take over any part of the area held by the oil companies under lease or any part of the equipment.

Prime Ministers Meeting Continuing Influence of British Commonwealth Is Essential to U.S. Interests

This is the twenty-fifth and last of a series of articles by Sumner Welles, former United States Under Secretary of State which have appeared exclusively each week in The Edmonton Bulletin.—EDITOR.

By SUMNER WELLES

Former United States Under Secretary of State

The meeting in London of the Prime Ministers of the British dominions which ended on May 17 was of vital importance to the long-range interests of the United States. Its significance has generally been recognized in this country.

Since the enactment of the Statute of Westminster there has been no similar conference which has been called upon to deal with issues more fundamental in their bearing upon the future destinies of the English-speaking democracies.

As the British people look ahead to the post-war years, and as the members of their present government plan for the future, the outstanding issue necessarily must be how best the British Commonwealth of Nations can shape its policies so that in the years to come it may continue to be the powerful factor in the Sumner Welles family of nations which has been for so many generations.

SHARP CLEAVAGE

The precise manner in which this basic question should be decided has long since been a matter of discussion and even of public debate between outstanding leaders in the United Kingdom. There has appeared to be a sharp cleavage of opinion among many months ago Lord Halifax, a public opinion in the British Isles, as well as in the British dominions, upheld the concept of a more firmly integrated British Commonwealth of Nations, more capable of fixing the foreign policy and the economic policy by which all of its component parts should be guided, on the ground that only in such a manner could the British Commonwealth of Nations retain a position in the world equivalent to that now possessed by the United States and the United Kingdom. The position of Mr. Churchill, the Australian Prime Minister, would seem to incline toward this point of view.

The New Zealand Prime Minister, Mr. Fraser, is said to be far less equivocal.

GO STILL FURTHER

The solutions advocated by Marshal Smuts, the Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, in his own pronouncement upon the role which the British Commonwealth should follow after the war, made known some months ago, not only support the thesis advanced by Lord Halifax but go still further by suggesting the larger position within some form of supplementary federation of the United Kingdom and the dominions of Western Europe.

To him there could be no valid partnership—as between real powers in the post-war period unless the position of the British Commonwealth of Nations were to be fortified in this manner.

The stature of Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister of Canada, as a world statesman has grown immeasurably during these war years. The position which he has taken with regard to these all-important questions of policy is in sharp contrast to that of some of these other leaders. He has made this plain in numerous statements, but never more emphatically than in his recent speech to members of both houses of the British Parliament, in that speech he said:

"If at the close of hostilities, the strength and unity of the commonwealth are to be maintained, these ends will be achieved not by policies which are exclusive but by policies which can be shared by other nations. I am firmly convinced that the way to maintain our unity is to base that unity upon principles which can be extended to all nations. I am equally convinced that the only way to maintain world unity is to base it upon principles that can be universally applied. Both the security and the welfare of the nations of the British Commonwealth, and in a large measure the security and welfare of all peace-loving nations, will depend on the capacity of the nations of the commonwealth to give leadership in the pursuit of policies which, in character, are not exclusive but inclusive."

ESSENTIAL TO U.S.

I think there can be no question in the minds of the overwhelming majority of the people of the United States that the continuing influence of the British Commonwealth of Nations in the world of the post-war period is essential to the basic interests of the United States. The reasons for this are so manifold and so obvious that they require no new analysis. But the confidence of the people is further strengthened by the British Commonwealth as a whole, or by its component parts individually, is the immediate question of concern to this country. For the decisions reached will inevitably help to determine not only the kind of world organization which can be constructed, but likewise the rapidly with which the United Nations may be able to achieve world reconstruction and world stability.

In Mr. Churchill's exceedingly eloquent speech upon the British Empire uttered in the House of Commons a few days ago, he said, "I have never conceived that a fraternal relationship with the United States would militate in any way against the interests of the British Commonwealth and Empire or breed ill feeling with our great ally. In this I am confident that the future structure which we shall surely raise out of the ruins of a world that has been so long in the process of disintegrating will be room for all generous free associations of a special character, so long as they are not disloyal to the world which we are to build for the future of mankind."

This statement, it seems to me, can only be regarded as being accurate if the policies of the British Commonwealth in the future become policies of the character so stoutly urged by the Prime Minister of Canada. The British Commonwealth has been a constructive and stabilizing factor in furthering world progress. It is to continue to be so. In Mr. Mackenzie King's words it is a guide by policies, which are not exclusively but inclusive. If, for example, the economic policies adopted by the commonwealth after the war continue to be exclusive, as they are at present, and continue to provide for the imperial preferences established at the Ottawa Conference, there is no hope for the international adoption of those liberal and non-discriminatory trade policies which are the only foundation upon which a healthy and expanding international trade can be built up in the future.

The continuation of the unimpaired unity of the British Commonwealth as a "generous free association" can be wholly compatible with the creation of a world organization capable of maintaining peace and security. But it will only prove to be so if this "generous free association" adopts and maintains policies which make for universal co-operation, and not for regional, or national, segregation.

Chinese Now Hint Japs Have Loyang

By NEWSPAPER

CHUNGKING, May 27.—(AP)—

The Chinese command announced last night that contact with the ancient Chinese city of Loyang had been cut and an official army spokesman said the city had fallen to strong Japanese forces which have been besieging it for days. Tokyo claimed capture of the city Thursday.

"Since the night of May 24 the enemy has been making continuous attacks on Loyang," said the official spokesman. "Since Thursday morning the situation at Loyang has been obscure, as communication with the city has been cut off."

The Japanese drive through the westward toward Shensi province has been halted at all main points, Gen.issimo said.

The spokesman denied official Chinese reports of last Tuesday that the Chinese forces in Yunnan province along the border of Burma had cut the Burma road by capturing the town of Chingling.

Aviation Control Plan Is Criticized

VANCOUVER, May 27.—(CP)—

Maj. Harold Brown, head of the British Columbia Federation of Industries, yesterday criticized what he termed "the threat of federal authorities to wipe out any competition" in air transportation in the Dominion.

"Government spokesmen, national and provincial, seem to lose no opportunity of declaring that more and more control of industry will be necessary," he said.

"I have great admiration for Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply, who is doing great service for the country with conspicuous ability. He talks our language as it were, and was a very successful technician in the atmosphere of free choice and opportunity."

"In his declarations regarding air policy, however, he shows signs of having been, perhaps unconsciously, injected with the virus of departmental trespass on the proper function of full and free post-war enterprise."

Next Meeting Liquor Group Is Set For July

Next sitting of the Alberta committee inquiring into the liquor and beer situation in this province will not be held until July, it was indicated Saturday by Hon. C. E. Gerhart, minister of municipal affairs, committee chairman. The group has concluded hearings in Edmonton, Calgary, and Lethbridge, and the next sitting, probably the final one, will be held in Edmonton. At this hearing, two witnesses expected to be heard are: A. King, chairman of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, and Charles Trautwein, president, the Alberta Wineries Association.

Between 30 and 40 submissions have been received at hearings so far, Mr. Gerhart said. Some of these have been in the form of resolutions, which were not spoken to when presented.

The minister pointed out that while many rumors are heard about overhauling in prices of beer sold by the case, the committee cannot deal with rumors. "The only thing we can deal with is definite evidence," he said.

Committee sittings cannot be held in June because of holidays and other engagements. Mr. Gerhart is planning to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, to be held in Montreal on June 12, and other holidays also intervene.

Besides the minister, other committee members are: J. H. DeBolt, Social Credit M.L.A. for Spirit River, and Mayor Andrew Davidson, Independent M.L.A., Calgary. H. D. Carls, postwar reconstruction committee secretary, is secretary to the group.

Thomas Muldoon, Provost, president; the Rev. W. M. Morrison, Peace river, vice-president.

Organizer

Orvis A. Kennedy, vice-president of the Alberta Social Credit League, and former Social Credit M.P. for East Edmonton, who has been appointed Social Credit party organizer for the province of Ontario. The announcement was made by Robert Dawson, St. Thomas, Ontario representative on the Dominion Social Credit board.

The group asked the government to provide placement for Japanese Canadians in jobs according to their occupational skills and interests, in such a way as to obtain dependent income, opportunities for regular home life, adequate education, and satisfactory social relations and recreational facilities.

The conference stated the vast majority of Japanese Canadians are loyal Canadians. They were asked to co-operate in the order for evacuation, accepting the move as patriotic duties. No sabotage has been found to be committed by them. Their criminal record on the west coast has been the lowest of any racial group as a group they are bright, intelligent, industrious, ambitious, and law-abiding.

Given a chance they readily adopted Canadian ways of life, speak and understand English, attend churches—over one-half being members or adherents of Canadian churches.

Members of the conference believe they can obtain justice and liberty for Canadian citizens only as they secure them for all Canadian citizens. Denial of any aid is a threat to all.

The report of the committee for missionary education and foreign missions also supported any movement of the Japanese to the church courts to urge upon the government that when making new treaties with China, conditions of entrance to this country, and other matters, there shall be in harmony with what Canadians believe.

The committee on publications reported that Mrs. Mary McVie, secretary, and the Rev. Dr. E. T. Scragg, chairman, reported that the Edmonton publishing house has enjoyed one of the best years in its history of 115 years of operation.

The publisher on sales for 1943 was amount to $131,746, almost a quarter of a million more than was done over a year ago.

The Rev. Oswald W. S. McCall, D.D., Vancouver, preached on "Jesus, Race and Nation," at the morning worship service. The Rev. J. H. Arnp, D.D., also gave an address.

The reopening and dedication of the original McDougall church as a shrine and museum took place Saturday afternoon.

A lay association banquet will be held at the Coronation Hotel Saturday evening when the Rev. J. H. Arnp, D.D., will give an address on "A Trip to South America."

Cpl. Royane Marsh of Denver, Alta. has been promoted to the rank of sergeant in the Canadian Women's Army Corps. It was announced Saturday at headquarters, M.D. 13 in Calgary. Sgt. Marsh enlisted on Sept. 1942, in Edmonton. At present she is attached to No. 15 Administrative Unit, C.W.A.C., here.

Church Asks Settlement of Canadian Japs

The Alberta conference of the United Church of Canada, meeting Saturday morning in Metropolitan United Church, asked a resolution asking the Dominion government for regulations permitting resettlement of Japanese Canadians.

The group asked the government to provide placement for Japanese Canadians in jobs according to their occupational skills and interests, in such a way as to obtain dependent income, opportunities for regular home life, adequate education, and satisfactory social relations and recreational facilities.

The conference stated the vast majority of Japanese Canadians are loyal Canadians. They were asked to co-operate in the order for evacuation, accepting the move as patriotic duties. City Realtor

John C. Kenwood, vice-president, Edmonton Real Estate Association, who said Saturday there has been no noticeable let-up in the demand for city houses and the demand for low-priced homes to purchase is still at peak level.

"This would show that most of those laid off were able to obtain other work in the city, thereby not clearing any housing accommodation for other applicants," Mr. Kenwood stated.

He said the demand for low priced homes to purchase is still at peak level, most persons being able to make it impracticable for planning a garden.

Asks Action on Beautification Of Hotel Park

On the eve of his departure for the Pacific coast for a three-month vacation, Frank Pike, Edmonton beautification officer, who has been active in the campaign for beautification of the Macdonald hotel site, on Saturday appealed to his many friends to keep the beautification work in this connection during his absence from the city.

Mr. Pike, formerly manager of the Bank of Montreal here, recently undertook promotion of the beautification of the site of a park site immediately north of the hotel, for the future building of a monument to commemorate the service and sacrifice of Edmonton's youth in war.

"We are all agreed that housing must take priority over plans for parks and beautification. A more progressive housing program is an urgent and major necessity," he said Saturday.

PLAN IS IMPORTANT
"We are, however, strongly of the opinion that beautification is also of the utmost importance because the 'scuttling of the shacks' in the heart of the city would be a healthy and progressive step."

"It would stimulate and encourage the beautification of the city, and act as a strong tonic of vitality at a time when it is badly needed."

Mr. Pike pointed out that the present "unhappy agreement" of the Macdonald hotel site, poor advertisement and evidence of neglect and lack of civic pride.

"It is, of course, impossible to remain idle in the face of such adverse advertisement has had on our progress and prosperity during the last 20 years."

SYPHILIS AND GONORRHOEA ARE THREATENING CANADA'S WAR EFFORT!

These diseases are a major cause of absenteeism in factories and "Barrack Casualties" in the Armed Forces. Both are creating a public health problem of the first magnitude that should be the chief concern of every citizen, parent and taxpayer.

In Canada Venereal Diseases have attained epidemic proportions, exceeding greatly the number of cases of Infantile Paralysis, Typhoid, Tuberculosis, Diphtheria or Scarlet Fever.

Every young couple contemplating marriage should be encouraged to have a complete medical examination. Old cases of Syphilis or Gonorrhoea can flare up anew and are just as contagious as a fresh one. Blood tests before marriage are good insurance for health and happiness.

Syphilis and Gonorrhoea may infect and kill babies before birth, or if they are born alive, they may be blind for life, sickly or deformed. Syphilis in adults is a direct cause of blindness and insanity. Prenatal blood tests and treatment of infected mothers ensure the health of babies.

Venereal Diseases strike at the poor and the rich alike. It is a community problem and must be faced as such

GET A BLOOD TEST!

For the sake of your own health and happiness . . . for the good of your community . . . play safe. Don't guess. Remember, there are in Canada about 300,000 victims of Syphilis, 200,000 of whom do not know they have it. There is only one way to make sure . . . only one way to know if you are free and untainted . . . that is to get a blood test.

Spacious House Has Modest Price Tag

This attractive home suggests spaciousness and graceful living beyond the valuation.

The plan is simple and open, affording maximum accommodations for a house of this size and for the family that desires a little more formality than that offered by cottage types.

A protective vestibule guards the living room from casual visitors. The dining room has a broad rear window and another looking out on the porch, which is accessible through the living room. An efficiently arranged kitchen has equally easy access to both front and rear doors.

The good-sized study has plenty of light and its proximity to the downstairs bathroom makes it useful as an extra guest room. The second floor has three bedrooms of excellent proportions, bath, porch, and attic storage space. Built-in garage is on the basement level. If this is the sort of house you want, your favorite architect or builder can duplicate for you the plans pictured above.

Grow Greens and Eat Them For Nutritious Diet

If you don't like spinach, there are many other greens, leafy vegetables which you can grow in your Victory garden. But if none in the list that follows is to your liking, then something should be done about it.

Greens, leafy red and yellow vegetables are the vitamin-rich foods so essential to nutrition. They are rich especially in vitamin A. At least one should be served on your table every day. They are not like leafy greens, should eat them in spite of that, say the nutritionists.

Some green leafy vegetables can be served raw in salads, others are cooked, and among these are the green, so highly esteemed, as spring onions by our grandmothers, who did not know about vitamins, but did know that greens were beneficial.

IT'S MORE FORMAL IN DESIGN THAN POPULAR COTTAGE TYPES

City Dweller

He hungers for a little piece of land.

A place where he can dig and plant and hoe.

Set out tomato plants and tie them up.

Put a few cabbage out and watch them grow.

A little trench for celery, radish.

A clump of two of rhubarb for a pie.

A little plot of herbs, some caraway.

A row of sage, a plant or two of dill.

A bit of onion seed for little cakes.

Homesteaders roots, a little round-bell.

For squashes or marrows, rusty candlesticks.

And golden pumpkins on a sunny slope.

He hungers for the warm feel of the soil.

The handle of a hoe tight in his hand.

Weeds to be pulled, a row to be straightened out.

The smell of heat upspring from the land.

Sun on leaves, the taste of summer rain.

The fragrant snail of land where dew has lain.

He plods all day, sets tiny figures down.

Keep Early Radish Sowings Down to One Week's Supply

Radishes share with young onions, grown from sets like welcome which is always given the first harvest from the Victory garden. In three weeks from the time of sowing, Scarlet Globe radishes should be ready for the table.

But in another week they are unfit to eat. A fact which many beginners ignore. If more than a week's supply of such an early variety is sown at one time, much of the harvest will go to waste.

It is a general rule that the longer a vegetable takes to mature, the longer the harvest lasts. Slower growing varieties of radishes remain in good condition longer than the earliest, but all sowings should be carefully considered to make sure that a wasteful surplus is not produced. This is one of the most frequent subjects overgrown in the garden.

Many gardeners grow the first radish crop by mixing a few radish seed with the seeds of carrots, parsnips, parsley and beets all of which can be sown as soon as the soil has been prepared. An early radish is used, which will germinate quickly to mark the location of the row, and come to maturity before the main crop has developed far enough to be injured by crowding.

Summer varieties of radishes have a long harvest season and winter varieties, sown in the early summer, produce huge roots which can be kept in storage for several weeks after the winter has set in.

The United States Chamber of Commerce has found through a survey that only one out of every 20 families in the States plans to buy or build a new home after the war. But three out of every 10 families already have their plans made for re-planting of homes, re-modelling of interiors, modernizing of various rooms or additions of rooms by utilization of basement or attic space.
